NATURE IS FOR EVERYBODY

Franklin Park Conservatory's outreach, education and access programs are built on the belief that nature is for everybody, with a range of initiatives that support community gardens, increase access to healthy foods, and make the Conservatory's green spaces more accessible to all. Because of you, more of our neighbors will experience the benefits of time spent in nature for years to come. Thanks to you, new seeds will be planted in rich soil, freshly-grown produce will be available and accessible to our neighbors, and more families will visit the Conservatory for the very first time, making cherished memories that will last a lifetime.

YOUR FIELD TO TABLE GENEROSITY SUPPORTS

GROWING TO GREEN

Building stronger communities through gardening

This capability-building initiative supports local community gardens with an emphasis on food access, nutrition, education and neighborhood connectivity.

FARMERS MARKET

Increasing access to fresh, affordable produce

Filling a gap for healthy local foods on the Near East Side, the Farmers Market meets the needs of low-income neighbors, supports local vendors and farmers, and educates children about healthy food choices.

TEEN CORPS

Preparing teens for a bright future

Through a six-week paid apprenticeship each summer, 24 teens grow produce in the community gardens and sell it at their own stand in the Farmers Market, building skills in entrepreneurship, urban gardening and team work.

ACCESS PROGRAMS

Ensuring the Conservatory is welcoming for all

The Conservatory's Access programs reduce admission costs while providing restorative benefits of nature to our entire community through monthly free Community Days, Museums for All reduced-rate admissions, and Access memberships.

The Women's Board of Franklin Park Conservatory proudly announces the 17th annual Field to Table, which will be held on Friday, August 22, 2025. Field to Table is a spectacular evening that celebrates the bounty of the late-summer harvest. More than 700 of Columbus' corporate and community leaders, Women's Board members and their guests will begin the evening at the Scotts Miracle-Gro Company Community Garden Campus, enjoying garden-inspired appetizers and specialty cocktails. Guests will then stroll to the Mallway gardens for a candle-lit dinner under the stars featuring Ohio's finest seasonal ingredients, grown and contributed by local farmers.

Funds raised from Field to Table will support the Conservatory's community outreach, education and access programs all year long, ensuring that opportunities to learn and connect with nature — both at the Conservatory and beyond — are open to everyone.
